A-Plant To End Southern Ohio Unemployment

Labor Experts See Shortage In 3 Counties

Pike, Ross, Scioto To Get Long-Needed Boost In Prosperity

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(P)—The U. S. Labor Department expects Scioto, Pike and Ross counties in Southern Ohio to develop a labor shortage next spring when hiring for construction of a huge new Atomic Energy Commission plant in that area gets into full swing.

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin has announced removal of this area from the list of those entitled to special treatment in placing of government contracts because they have surplus labor.

Tobin said the employment outlook for the Portsmouth labor market area has "abruptly changed" with the decision by AEC to build its $1.2 billion U-235 plant in Pike County.

The removal of this Southern Ohio area from the surplus labor list resulted from a manpower survey of the area by the department's Bureau of Employment Security.

In a detailed report on that survey, the bureau traced the area's economic difficulties since the depression.

"PROBLEMS associated with prosperity will come as a pleasant relief to Portsmouth, whose economy has never recovered from severe blows sustained during the 1930's," the report said.

"The depression, although nationwide in scope, had a particularly severe effect in Portsmouth."

The bureau said the construction peak at the new A-plant probably will be reached two years from this month. The AEC has said it expects some 30,000 workers to be in the job during this stage of the four-year task.

"Thousands of immigrants will have to enter the area if requirements of the new plant are to be filled," the bureau stated, "reversing the traditional outmigration pattern which has prevailed in the area for many years."

The bureau said it also expects many residents of Jackson, Highland, Adams and Vinton counties in Ohio and possibly of Greenup County in Northern Kentucky to take jobs at the new plant.

"It is also likely that immigrants from other areas may settle in these adjacent counties, taxing housing, schools, and similar community installations," the report continued.

Deputy Nabs Pair Here In Stolen Auto

Two Virginia men were nabbed early Sunday just outside Circleville in an auto which had been stolen earlier from Columbus.

And the auto was virtually unharmed—except for a small bullet hole put into it by a Pickaway County farmer.

The men were identified as Artie Bell, 38, and Charles King, 36, both of Lynchburg, Va.

Deputy Walter Richards said he was near Williamsport at about midnight Sunday when he spotted the car. Both men in the auto were acting strangely, Richards said, and he decided to follow them.

Then, when they reached the city dump just west of the Scioto River Bridge, Richards said the men pulled into the dump and cut off their lights.

Richards nabbed them there for investigation, finding a .45 calibre automatic and a toy gun under the seat. The automatic pistol and the toy gun belonged to the car's owner.

Shortly after he picked them up, Richards learned the owner had just made a report to Columbus police his auto had been stolen. So Richards took the men into jail.

Earlier in the evening, however, the men had pulled into a lane on the farm of Lawrence Wright, just north of Valley View Hill on Route 23, and fired two shots from the automobile.

Wright investigated to see what trouble was, and the men drove off at a high rate of speed. The farmer sent a shot from a .22 calibre rifle after them.

When looking over the auto later, the sheriff's office discovered the .22 had entered the boot of the automobile, penetrated through the rear seat and lodged in the front seat.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said the men probably will be turned over to Columbus authorities for prosecution.

RUSSIAN WOMAN BIOLOGIST Olga Lepeshinskaya, who says she has discovered secrets for prolonging the life span to 150 years, is pictured in her Moscow laboratory. There, at the moment, she is reportedly directing her efforts to keeping Premier Joseph Stalin, 72, alive for another 80 years. The professor and her co-workers are said to have moved into the Kremlin to carry on the experiments.

Tarleton Youth, 18, Killed Late Monday In Route 56 Auto Crash

An 18-year-old Tarleton youth was killed and two companions seriously injured late Monday when their auto failed to make a curve on Route 56.

Killed was Orville Ray Consoliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Consoliver of Tarleton.

Injured were Woodlee Howard, 24, of 210 Huston street, driver of the auto; and Clarence Morris, 23, of 633 Clinton street.

Deputy Jim Diltz said the fatal accident happened at about 8:50 p. m. Monday on Route 56, about one mile east of Leistville.

Diltz said the auto in which the three were riding was travelling west toward Circleville when it failed to negotiate a curve.

THE AUTO turned over once, struck a hedge fence and skidded about 25 yards on its side before halting on a culvert.

Consoliver suffered a fractured neck and a crushed chest in the smashup. He died enroute to Berger hospital.

Howard, the driver, suffered a fractured right leg, head lacerations and multiple contusions and abrasions. The other passenger, Clarence Morris, suffered lacerations and abrasions of the right arm, face, chest and left thigh. Howard and Morris were admitted for treatment in Berger hospital.

Funeral services for Consoliver will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday in Defenbaugh Funeral Home, with burial in Green Summit cemetery, Adelphi.

The youth was born April 29, 1934, in Hocking County, son of Sherman and Fannie Julian Consoliver, who survive.

Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Vincent Gagliardo and Georgia Consoliver, both of Columbus, and Helen Consoliver at home; and a grandfather, Walter Julian, of near Laurelville.

The youth was employed in Eshelman's mill in Circleville for the last year. His family moved from Salt Creek Township into Tarleton 10 days ago.

Friends may call in the funeral home after 2 p. m. Wednesday.

Force of the impact caused the gasoline tank of the Borrello auto to explode. Both autos careened to the left side of the highway.

THE BORRELLO car was completely destroyed by fire, while the front end of the Barber car was demolished by the crash and fire.

Barger was seriously hurt in the crash. He suffered severe scalp lacerations, face lacerations, fractures in his chest and severe lacerations of his right hand. Several tendons in the hand were severed.

A passenger in Barger's auto, Mary Holloway, 26, of New Holland, suffered injuries to both knees, chest injury and lacerations and bruises in her face.

In the Borrello auto, two passengers were hurt. They were Franco Cai, 27, with scalp lacerations; and Tommasco Bona, 49, with severe scalp lacerations. All were treated in Washington C.H. hospital.

Borrello later was haled before the court of Mayor Ed Amey in Circleville, here he was fined $15 and costs for illegal parking on the highway.

Customer Liked Shoes Broken In

LARNED, Kan., Sept. 2.—(P)—An elderly man didn't like any of the shoes shown to him in a store here but as he was leaving he noticed shoes worn by another customer, Chester Crane.

He asked Crane to let him try them on. Crane consented.

The result: Crane walked out in a new pair of shoes paid for by the elderly man, and the latter walked out in Crane's slightly worn, comfortably broken-in shoes.

LARNED, Kan., Sept. 2.—(P)—President Truman openly accused the Eisenhower command Tuesday of increasing the risk of atomic war by "talking loosely about liberating the enslaved peoples of Eastern Europe."

He declared John Foster Dulles and other "master-minds" of the Eisenhower campaign are playing "cruel, gutter politics with the lives of countless good men and women behind the Iron Curtain."

Truman then said:

"He knows what a precarious situation the world is in. He knows how easy it would be to start a war. But he is perfectly willing to have the Republican Party, and the Republican candidate, say things that increase the risk of war, simply in order to get votes."

The President gave every outward indication he is satisfied with Adlai Stevenson's campaign as he stepped up his whistle stop stumping for the Democratic nominee.

Truman demonstrated his ability to stir up campaign crowds again Monday night at Milwaukee when

Thunderjet's Pilot Survives County Crash

A 26-year old Columbus pilot escaped with minor injuries Sunday morning when his F84 Thunderjet crash-landed in a meadow about two miles southeast of Mt. Sterling in Pickaway County.

The pilot, Lt. Edward P. Drummond, is a veteran of the Korean fighting and is now attached to the 166th Fighter Interceptor squadron, based at Youngstown municipal airport.

Circleville township fire truck was called to the scene of the "pancake" landing, which carried the plane through the meadow, a fence and onto Route 56. The crash happened at about 8:30 a. m.

Drummond jettisoned his cockpit canopy before his plane struck, according to officials at Lockbourne Air Force base, but was unable to bail out. He suffered facial cuts when the ship plowed through a barbed wire fence.

THE ACCIDENT was investigated by State Highway Patrolman Bob Greene of Circleville, who gave first aid to the flyer.

Night Patrolman Frank Miller of Mt. Sterling police said a wing of Drummond's plane struck a telephone pole before the jet ripped along the grassy field on the Wayne Smith farm.

The aircraft skidded approximately 300 yards and then snapped through the fence before stopping on the highway. Drummond was treated by a Mt. Sterling physician.

Three Detroit men were held Tuesday in Pickaway County jail for investigation of auto larceny, kidnapping and robbery.

The trio was accused by John J. Fontana, 28, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., owner of the car which the men allegedly stole.

Fontana said the men, identified as Leroy Panck, 26, a steel worker; Frank Layne, 33, a produce worker; and Wayne Wheeler, 23, an electrician, all of Detroit, were hitchhiking Sunday in Detroit.

The car owner said he picked the men up, and they asked him to put down the top of his convertible. He refused, he said.

Fontana then said the men forced him to stop his car and put down the top. They took over the car then, he said, and drove into Ohio.

THEN THE MEN made him take off his clothing, which one of them donned, and gave him a pair of coveralls to wear.

When nearing Orient, they made him take off the coveralls and forced him to leave the car. Fontana sought aid from a house in Orient and the patrol was alerted for the men.

The trio was captured later in Portsmouth and were brought to Pickaway County jail Sunday night by County Prosecutor Guy Cline, patrol Cpl. R. E. Hoskey and Patrolman S. J. Hobar.

Cline Tuesday said he plans to file accusations of auto larceny against the men, although the case will be turned over if the FBI wishes to prosecute on a federal charge.

THE STRANGE death of Arthur Moore, 50, of Columbus, is a mystery to Columbus police.

Moore's body was found in a rooming house Monday by his landlord, Otto Ford. Police said a necktie was wrapped around Moore's neck and tied to a bed rail. His feet were tied together and his hands bound behind his back. There was no evidence of a struggle and Moore apparently had not been robbed.

St. Louis, Detroit Cases Get Airing

Truman-Fired Justice Aide Facing House Investigators

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(P)—House investigators called T. Lamar Caudle into a closed-door session Tuesday to tell about his handling of tax cases before he was fired by President Truman as an assistant attorney general last Nov. 16.

Caudle's name figured in two cases which came under the scrutiny of a House Judiciary Subcommittee last week.

The first was the alleged attempt to "whitewash" a grand jury investigation in St. Louis, which eventually led to the indictment and conviction of Internal Revenue Collector James P. Finnegan on charges of misconduct in office. Finnegan is appealing.

The second was a war frauds case against a Detroit man which languished without prosecution for six years and finally was dropped because it became "enfeebled by age."

Caudle was in charge of tax prosecutions for the Justice Department at the time both cases were pending.

WHETHER HE will appear later at a public hearing depends largely, said Rep. Keating (R-NY), on what develops at Tuesday afternoon's closed-door session. Keating is ranking minority member of the subcommittee.

Caudle, before leaving his home in Wadesboro, N. C. last weekend, said he would be "delighted to cooperate with the committee as I have with other committees."

Federal Judge George H. Moore told the subcommittee last Thursday that the Justice Department, from former Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath on down, dragged its feet in the grand jury investigation of the St. Louis revenue office.

Moore said the department took no action to get a complete investigation going until he served notice he was going to order an inquiry himself.

There was earlier testimony that, until Judge Moore intervened,

HE SAID any petitions will be received by council in the course of business, and that council will also complete its regular schedule for Tuesday night. Then, he added, if further discussion is needed on the highway project, Tuesday night's meeting will be adjourned to a time and place satisfactory to opposing factions.

"Council will be there to listen to both sides in an orderly, gentlemanly manner," Gordon said.

"We will not be there to discuss any personalities involved. The issue will be viewed strictly on its merits."

The national Chamber data includes a booklet published by its transportation and communication department in Sept., 1951.

Relating results of the 30-city survey, the booklet reported:

"In eight cities (all under 100,000 population), business was reported to have improved after opening the bypass; 13 cities (ranging from 2,000 to 800,000 population) reported no noticeable effect on business; businessmen in two cities (under 50,000 population) felt that they suffered as a result of the bypass."

"Of the remaining seven with no answer concerning effect on business, five were favorable to the

the St. Louis grand jury did nothing but present a preliminary report which one juror called a whitewash.

Ellis N. Slack, who was Caudle's assistant at the time and who now holds Caudle's job, denied suggestions that he had approved this preliminary report.

Caudle accompanied Slack to St. Louis when the grand jury was starting its inquiry.

Rep. Chelf (D-Ky.), chairman of the subcommittee, declared:

"IT APPEARS to me that there was a definite attempt to either flag down, delay, sidetrack, derail or entirely wreck this grand jury investigation."

The Detroit case involves an indictment returned early in 1944 charging Norman E. Miller, an industrial engineer and designer, with defrauding the government of $14,000 in charges for work on government contracts.

After numerous delays, during which Miller changed lawyers several times, the case finally was dropped in October, 1950. The government lost four of its key witnesses during the six-year hiatus.

Caudle's name appeared on one of the letters read into the record last week. Replying to a letter from one of Miller's attorneys in August, 1945, Caudle suggested the defense lawyers be given "opportunity within reason" to present facts bearing on the truth or falsity of the charges.

The Republican presidential nominee cut loose at the Truman regime in earnest for the first time in an address prepared to open a flying Southern campaign tour.

"A refreshing is not what we need," said Eisenhower. "A face-lifting job won't do it either. What the Washington mess must have is the full treatment."

Eisenhower said corruption and scandal were brewed by "too many men who are too small for their jobs, too big for their breeches and too long in power."

He said a wholesale cleanout was needed to restore decency, honesty and integrity to the national government.

"This Washington mess," he said, "is not a mere agency mess or a one-bureau mess or a one-department mess—it is a top-to-bottom mess."

The general declared it was enough to make Americans "hang our heads in shame."

THE TONE of the speech fulfilled advance word from his regional campaign headquarters in New York that he would "pull no punches" on his Dixie trip.

Some of his warmest admirers had complained that Eisenhower's campaigning was too soft. The general's aides said, however, that he had planned deliberately not to fire his ammunition too soon.

Eisenhower named no names in his prepared text.

He said the cost of the 'Washington mess' was being taken out of every American through higher taxes, higher prices and by "cutting down the value of every dollar you have put away for the future."

"You pay for the incompetence, stupidity and corruption on the part of those who have been caught and those who have not been caught," Eisenhower said.

He said newspapers reported that "we are getting two airfields in North Africa for the price of five" and that the papers carried countless other items concerning waste. The general asserted:

"If you are as sick and tired of all this as I am; if you are as tired as I am of picking up your newspaper every day and reading about a fresh government scandal, then let's get together and restore decency and honesty and integrity in the nation's capital."

Im his bid for Southern support, the Republican nominee said some Democratic spokesmen were "counting the votes of the South ahead of time along with the cemetery tombstones and the vacant lots that they carry in the election rolls in some of the cities they run up North."

Era Accident Injures Three

Three persons suffered minor injuries Sunday morning in a two-car crash in Era.

The accident happened at about 11:30 a. m. Sunday when autos operated by Sheldon Strausbaugh, 39, of Clyde, and George Rice, 19, of Mt. Sterling Route 3, collided.

Deputy Carl Radcliff said Strausbaugh told him the Rice car was in the center of the street and he believed the oncoming auto was planning to turn left.

Strausbaugh then said he swerved to the left side of the road in an attempt to avoid a collision, and Rice swerved back in his own lane. Injured in the crash were Russell Strausbaugh, 13, suffering head abrasions; Mary Rice, 24, body contusions; and Marion Rice, 20, lacerated face and broken teeth. They were treated in Mt. Sterling.

Man Says Trio, Kidnaps Him, Steals Auto

Three Detroit men were held Tuesday in Pickaway County jail for investigation of auto larceny, kidnapping and robbery.

The trio was accused by John J. Fontana, 28, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., owner of the car which the men allegedly stole.

Fontana said the men, identified as Leroy Panck, 26, a steel worker; Frank Layne, 33, a produce worker; and Wayne Wheeler, 23, an electrician, all of Detroit, were hitchhiking Sunday in Detroit.

The car owner said he picked the men up, and they asked him to put down the top of his convertible. He refused, he said.

When nearing Orient, they made him take off the coveralls and forced him to leave the car. Fontana sought aid from a house in Orient and the patrol was alerted for the men.

The trio was captured later in Portsmouth and were brought to Pickaway County jail Sunday night by County Prosecutor Guy Cline, patrol Cpl. R. E. Hoskey and Patrolman S. J. Hobart.

Cline Tuesday said he plans to file accusations of auto larceny against the men, although the case will be turned over if the FBI wishes to prosecute on a federal charge.

Federal Judge George H. Moore told the subcommittee last Thursday that the Justice Department, from former Atty. Gen. J. Howard McGrath on down, dragged its feet in the grand jury investigation of the St. Louis revenue office.

Moore said the department took no action to get a complete investigation going until he served notice he was going to order an inquiry himself.

There was earlier testimony that, until Judge Moore intervened, the St. Louis grand jury did nothing but present a preliminary report which one juror called a whitewash.

Ellis N. Slack, who was Caudle's assistant at the time and who now holds Caudle's job, denied suggestions that he had approved this preliminary report.

Caudle accompanied Slack to St. Louis when the grand jury was starting its inquiry.

Rep. Chelf (D-Ky.), chairman of the subcommittee, declared:

"IT APPEARS to me that there was a definite attempt to either flag down, delay, sidetrack, derail or entirely wreck this grand jury investigation."

The Detroit case involves an indictment returned early in 1944 charging Norman E. Miller, an industrial engineer and designer, with defrauding the government of $14,000 in charges for work on government contracts.

After numerous delays, during which Miller changed lawyers several times, the case finally was dropped in October, 1950. The government lost four of its key witnesses during the six-year hiatus.

Caudle's name appeared on one of the letters read into the record last week. Replying to a letter from one of Miller's attorneys in August, 1945, Caudle suggested the defense lawyers be given "opportunity within reason" to present facts bearing on the truth or falsity of the charges.

Big Cleanout Of Political Bosses Needed

GOP Nominee Opens Up With Heavy Blows In Tour Of South

ATLANTA, Sept. 2.—(P)—Dwight D. Eisenhower Tuesday called the Democratic administration a mess of stupid corruption and scandal and demanded a wholesale cleanout of the political bosses in Washington.

The Republican presidential nominee cut loose at the Truman regime in earnest for the first time in an address prepared to open a flying Southern campaign tour.

"A refreshing is not what we need," said Eisenhower. "A face-lifting job won't do it either. What the Washington mess must have is the full treatment."

Eisenhower said corruption and scandal were brewed by "too many men who are too small for their jobs, too big for their breeches and too long in power."

He said a wholesale cleanout was needed to restore decency, honesty and integrity to the national government.

"This Washington mess," he said, "is not a mere agency mess or a one-bureau mess or a one-department mess—it is a top-to-bottom mess."

The general declared it was enough to make Americans "hang our heads in shame."

THE TONE OF the speech fulfilled advance word from his regional campaign headquarters in New York that he would "pull no punches" on his Dixie trip.

Some of his warmest admirers had complained that Eisenhower's campaigning was too soft. The general's aides said, however, that he had planned deliberately not to fire his ammunition too soon.

Eisenhower named no names in his prepared text.

He said the cost of the "Washington mess" was being taken out of every American through higher taxes, higher prices and by "cutting down the value of every dollar you have put away for the future."

"You pay for the incompetence, stupidity and corruption on the part of those who have been caught and those who have not been caught," Eisenhower said.

He said newspapers reported that "we are getting two airfields in North Africa for the price of five" and that the papers carried countless other items concerning waste. The general asserted:

"If you are as sick and tired of all this as I am; if you are as tired as I am of picking up your newspaper every day and reading about a fresh government scandal, then let's get together and restore decency and honesty and integrity in the nation's capital."

Im his bid for Southern support, the Republican nominee said some Democratic spokesmen were "counting the votes of the South ahead of time along with the cemetery tombstones and the vacant lots that they carry in the election rolls in some of the cities they run up North."

REFERRING TO Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, Eisenhower said: "Even my distinguished opponent."

Bridge-Climber Headed For Pen

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 2.—(P)—Sheriff Burl Justice says Eugene H. Newman, 26, who threatened to jump off the U. S. Grant suspension bridge across the Ohio River Monday night, will be returned to Ohio Penitentiary.

Newman, father of four small children, worried a crowd of more than 100 persons and kept bridge traffic tied up for three hours while he crawled around on top of the 150-foot high span. Justice said Newman had been serving a term at the penitentiary for non-support and was out on probation.

Mystery Death Stumping Police

COLUMBUS, Sept. 2.—(P)—The strange death of Arthur Moore, 50, of Columbus, is a mystery to Columbus police.

Moore's body was found in a rooming house Monday by his landlord, Otto Ford. Police said a necktie was wrapped around Moore's neck and tied to a bed rail. His feet were tied together and his hands bound behind his back. There was no evidence of a struggle and Moore apparently had not been robbed.

Truman Praises Taft But Raps GOP

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 2.—(P)—President Truman openly accused the Eisenhower command Tuesday of increasing the risk of atomic war by "talking loosely about liberating the enslaved peoples of Eastern Europe."

He declared John Foster Dulles and other "master-minds" of the Eisenhower campaign are playing "cruel, gutter politics with the lives of countless good men and women behind the Iron Curtain."

Truman then said: "He knows what a precarious situation the world is in. He knows how easy it would be to start a war. But he is perfectly willing to have the Republican Party, and the Republican candidate, say things that increase the risk of war, simply in order to get votes."

he was interrupted 46 times at a labor rally where he described Dwight D. Eisenhower as the "lonely, captive candidate" of Republican "special interests" trying to "hide behind a new face."

He called for the defeat of Republican Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and replied to GOP demands for a change at Washington by saying: "It is time for a change from the big lie—from the brazen Republican efforts to falsify history, to smear and ruin innocent individuals, to trample the basic liberties of American people."

Stopping for 55 minutes Tuesday morning in Cincinnati, hometown of Sen. Robert Taft, the President praised the Republican leader as being "intellectually honest—that is more than you can say for other Republicans."

He again expressed regret at Taft's being passed over for the Republican nomination in favor of Eisenhower, asserting that, with Taft, the Republicans "at least know what they're getting."

ent admits that his party had produced a mess in Washington.

Stevenson told an Aug. 20 news conference that crime, corruption and misconduct are "messy" wherever they are, and they must be eradicated. He also said the convictions for wrongdoing showed there had been a mess in Washington. "I intend to deal with corruption ruthlessly," he declared.

Eisenhower said that President Truman has announced that the Democratic candidate "must run on one issue—the record of the administration."

"On both these points I am in hearty agreement with the opposition," Eisenhower said, meaning the "mess" in the administration record.

Eisenhower said he was not predicting the outcome of the election Nov. 4, but he pledged that, whatever his future status, he would not rest until "the peddlers of privilege and the destroyers of decency are banished from the nation's house."

In assailing the administration in his speech here, the general promised to unleash still more artillery—and soon, he said:

"Today and tomorrow, here in the Southland, I shall intensify my attack against corruption in government; against the heedless policies that nullify our thrift and erode our savings by inflation; against federal deficits and the failure to live within our means; against waste of resources and our money; against arbitrary usurpation and seizure of power; against disloyalty in the federal service; against the whole tangled aggregation of incompetence and expediency and bossdom."

He also said the convictions for wrongdoing showed there had been a mess in Washington. "I intend to deal with corruption ruthlessly," he declared.

"On both these points I am in hearty agreement with the opposition," Eisenhower said, meaning the "mess" in the administration record.

Eisenhower said he was not predicting the outcome of the election Nov. 4, but he pledged that, whatever his future status, he would not rest until "the peddlers of privilege and the destroyers of decency are banished from the nation's house."

Ohio County Auditors Eye New Tax Law

Some May Balk At Equalization Set Up By Legislature

COLUMBUS, Sept. 2.—Ohio's county auditors are hard at work to meet state requirements on the new tax equalization program.

Some have run into a maze of computation difficulties. Some have entered mild protests at state demands. And there have been signs of balking by some.

The new program was established under a law passed by the 98th General Assembly. It is designed to bring all property valuations in Ohio up to a minimum of 50 per cent of the market selling price during 1946-48.

To do this, some counties and municipalities will have to increase their assessed valuations—on which real property taxes are based—many percentage points. An increase of 35.10 per cent, for instance, in the City of Akron, is about the highest among the cities.

FIGURES for all counties and all municipalities are not yet complete, but among 14 of the state's largest cities, Springfield appears to have the lowest increase figure—12 per cent.

It seems probable some of the protests from auditors have been reflections from protests of property owners themselves. For many of the latter are in line to pay higher real property taxes when the assessed value of their land or buildings is increased.

But the Board of Tax Appeals has pushed the program without letup.

It has given all the taxing districts a schedule indicating the ratios of the assessed valuations to sales. The ratios are based on sales data collected for the years 1946-48, and the assessed valuations used for the tax list and duplicate.

Where the computations have been completed, the subdivisions have been given a recapitulation of the percentage increases required to equal the minimum aggregate valuations for the tax year 1952. The new program is effective with this year's taxes.

The board has given counties, townships, villages and cities the increase percentages. But it is up to the county auditor as to how he wants to spread the increase, so long as the total increase on a countywide basis equals or exceeds the minimum requirement.

Auditors in the weeks ahead must submit their tax abstracts for approval by the board. If the abstracts do not meet with approval of the board, the auditor will be ordered to comply with the minimum requirements. If he doesn't comply within 90 days, then the law provides for penalties.

These penalties involve withholding 50 per cent of local government funds and school foundation money obtained from the state.

Indonesia has treasures of rubber, oil, sugar, spices, minerals and fibers which have barely been touched, says the National Geographic Society.

Contract Awarded For New Bridge

Contract has been awarded for construction of a bridge on county road seven, two miles east of Ashville.

The contract, awarded by the state, went to the firm of McNamara and Reder, Delaware. Work will be handled by Pickaway County engineers department.

The new bridge, spanning Little Walnut Creek, will replace one of the last of the county's covered bridges. Work on the project was scheduled to begin Tuesday.

Cost of the project had been estimated at $118,240. The McNamara and Reder bid, one of six submitted, was $91,474.95.

Even In 1828 They Debated!

More than 60 years before the American automobile was invented—and much longer still before engineers pulled out their maps and marked off U. S. Route 23—Circleville was worried over one of its most important transportation routes.

Glancing ahead perhaps to the current controversy over relocation of the main north-south highway here, a recent issue of the Circleville Rotary Club publication told it this way:

Did you know that May 24, 1828 was a critical day in the history of Circleville? It was on that day that the location of the aqueduct to carry waters and boats of the Ohio Erie Canal across the Scioto River was to be decided.

MANY ROUTES had been suggested but three finally proposed for the site were: Keffer's Point, located between the mouths of Darby and Hargus Creeks; a crossing at Circleville; and a third, southwest of Circleville near the mouth of Yellowbud Creek.

THE CONTEST narrowed down to Keffer's Point and at Circleville, with advantage in favor of the former; for by that route the canal would cost $7,000 less to build. Here was an issue that meant much to the growth and survival of Circleville. Should the canal cross at Keffer's, it was apparent that the nearness was just sufficient to prove damaging to the interests of the town, and it was too far away to secure to it any advantages.

The odds of $7,000 against the town must be overcome. The commissioners of the canal proposed that if the citizens of Circleville would raise one half the extra cost, they should have the location. For a town the size of Circleville, this was a large sum, but it was done in a day.

On the 30th day of May, construction of the aqueduct just south of the river bridge was put under contract and work started at once. It was completed in 1831 and the first mule-drawn packet, the "Governor Brown," passing through the aqueduct into the lower-level locks was occasion for a great celebration, for one must realize that next to the stage-coach, this was our town's first transportation unit.

On April 27, 1915, at about midnight, a spectacular fire destroyed the entire wooden structure.

Good Success Formula For Girls: Stay In There Pitching—Curves

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK.—Girls, our success formula for you is simple:

"Stay in there and keep pitching those curves."

The symbol of this vibrant maxim is Marilyn Monroe, who has proved an ambitious girl doesn't have to come to the big city to get ahead. She can do it in her own hometown.

At nine Marilyn earned five cents a month spending money setting tables in a Los Angeles orphan home. At 24, in the nearby film studio where she now has to wait on nobody, she draws down $750 a week. In Hollywood, where she is rated as one of the most sultry discoveries since the late Jean Harlow, this naturally is considered peonage.

"They keep saying that one of these days they'll tear up my contract and write me a better one," she said. "And one of these days I wish they would."

"I was having my hair fixed in my hotel room, and all I had on was a towel," she said. Some reporters were on the other side of the door asking me questions. And such questions! They wanted to know if I knew how many stomachs a cow had, and they seemed real surprised when I gave them the right answer—four.

"Then they asked me if I knew what heat was? I told them sure—heat is something that is generated. Isn't that right?"

Marilyn rather enjoys people who take her for a real life dumb blonde. She is dumb the same way Mae West is.

At the moment she is rather amazed by the public interest in her disclosure that she never wears brassieres, girdles or any other form of underclothing, and sleeps raw except for a nightly dab of perfume.

"It's more comfortable not to wear underclothing, and I don't like to feel wrinkles," she said. "What's so unusual about that? You must know a lot of girls who do the same thing—and who put on perfume before going to sleep."

Miss Monroe feels most American women should follow her example and emancipate themselves from bras, corsets and girdles.

"But, first, some of them ought to exercise," she said, "in order to be...to be...you know...firm. I exercise with light weights."

"I lie on my back with my arms overhead and lift the weights 15 times. It is a kind of pull against gravity, I guess. I used to walk a lot, too. Walking up a steep hill is the best thing for a woman's legs."

But what about the subject on the minds of 10 million girls this leap year—how to catch a husband? Marilyn, whose own marriage at 16 didn't last, gave two simple rules:

"1. A girl should follow her instincts."

"2. That will about take care of things, as instincts are important."

As for sex (a current events topic most movie stars and baseball players usually have opinions on), Miss Monroe said:

"Truthfully, I've never given it a second thought."

And she was gone before I thought of asking her what her first thought was.

George Davis Is Promoted

George E. Davis of 217 Huston street, has been promoted to sergeant while serving with the 40th Infantry Division in Korea.

Despite the Summer rain which has made the frontlines a quagmire of mud, the central sector has been the scene of a recent flare-up of Communist attacks and patrol skirmishes.

Sgt. Davis entered the Army in 1941 and received basic training in Camp Walters, Texas. He arrived in Korea last March and is now assigned as a cook to Company C, 223rd Infantry Regiment.

People Eating Less Meat Now

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—People throughout the world are getting less meat despite increasing meat production, says the Agriculture Department. And few countries can expect things to get better.

The reason: Meat output isn't keeping up with growths in population. The department said also that traditional exporting countries have less to ship out and production has fallen off sharply in many European countries.

Moore Quits Pension Post

Harry Moore of West High street has resigned his post on the Circleville police pension board.

Moore served many years on the pension board. He resigned because of hearing difficulties. City Council is expected to appoint a replacement for the post. Other members of the pension board are George Crites, Ray Cook, Turney Ross, George Green and Earl Smith.

The symbol of this vibrant maxim is Marilyn Monroe, who has proved an ambitious girl doesn't have to come to the big city to get ahead. She can do it in her own hometown.

At nine Marilyn earned five cents a month spending money setting tables in a Los Angeles orphanage home. At 24, in the nearby film studio where she now has to wait on nobody, she draws down $750 a week. In Hollywood, where she is rated as one of the most sultry discoveries since the late Jean Harlow, this naturally is considered peonage.

"They keep saying that one of these days they'll tear up my contract and write me a better one," she said. "And one of these days I wish they would."

"I was having my hair fixed in my hotel room, and all I had on was a towel," she said. Some reporters were on the other side of the door asking me questions. And such questions! They wanted to know if I knew how many stomachs a cow had, and they seemed real surprised when I gave them the right answer—four.

"Then they asked me if I knew what heat was? I told them sure — heat is something that is generated. Isn't that right?"

Marilyn rather enjoys people who take her for a real life dumb blonde. She is dumb the same way Mae West is.

At the moment she is rather amazed by the public interest in her disclosure that she never wears brassieres, girdles or any other form of underclothing, and sleeps raw except for a nightly dab of perfume.

"It's more comfortable not to wear underclothing, and I don't like to feel wrinkles," she said. "What's so unusual about that? You must know a lot of girls who do the same thing—and who put on perfume before going to sleep."

Miss Monroe feels most American women should follow her example and emancipate themselves from bras, corsets and girdles.

"But, first, some of them ought to exercise," she said, "in order to be . . . to be . . . you know . . . firm. I exercise with light weights."

"I lie on my back with my arms overhead and lift the weights 15 times. It is a kind of pull against gravity, I guess. I used to walk a lot, too. Walking up a steep hill is the best thing for a woman's legs."

But what about the subject on the minds of 10 million girls this leap year—how to catch a husband? Marilyn, whose own marriage at 16 didn't last, gave two simple rules:

"1. A girl should follow her instincts."

"2. That will about take care of things, as instincts are important."

As for sex (a current events topic most movie stars and baseball players usually have opinions on), Miss Monroe said:

"Truthfully, I've never given it a second thought."

And she was gone before I thought of asking her what her first thought was.

George E. Davis of 217 Huston street, has been promoted to sergeant while serving with the 40th Infantry Division in Korea.

Despite the Summer rain which has made the frontlines a quagmire of mud, the central sector has been the scene of a recent flare-up of Communist attacks and patrol skirmishes.

Sgt. Davis entered the Army in 1941 and received basic training in Camp Walters, Texas. He arrived in Korea last March and is now assigned as a cook to Company C, 223rd Infantry Regiment.

People Eating Less Meat Now

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(AP)—People throughout the world are getting less meat despite increasing meat production, says the Agriculture Department. And few countries can expect things to get better.

The reason: Meat output isn't keeping up with growths in population. The department said also that traditional exporting countries have less to ship out and production has fallen off sharply in many European countries.

A FAINT HOPE

OBSERVERS IN NEARBY West Germany estimate the program of deportation of "enemies of the people," which began in Hungary last month, has already affected 10,000 persons in that unhappy land. Those being deported include rich farmers, shopkeepers, professional men and their families—the middle class which communism everywhere obliterates.

Deported men are allowed to take one suit in addition to the garb they are wearing. Women may have two dresses. Each deportee must have a food supply for two days. All other property is seized by the government. Where the deportees go is unknown, but there are rumors of a large increase in political prisoners from the satellite countries in the slave labor camps of the Soviet Union.

An escaped Hungarian policeman says it runs counter to feelings of humanity to be ordered to arrest all sorts of innocent people, old and young, for some minor infraction of Communist regulations. One peasant was sentenced to six months for having 20 eggs illegally in his possession. This policeman says 80 percent of his officers feel as he does.

Here is a faint hope of cleaning up the mess incubated by the Russian madmen behind the iron curtain. Popular discontent may affect military forces and the secret police. But discontent among these elements is held to a minimum because they are best fed.

PROBLEM OF POWER

THAT EIGHT-DAY PRODUCTION halt which John L. Lewis has ordered for the coal industry raises serious implications. A few men, with industry-wide power, seem to hold production in the hollow of their hands.

These few labor bosses, with total power over workers that is currently unchallenged, can wreck the country if they are so inclined. Heavy damage was caused by the steel strike. A prolonged coal strike would be no less damnable.

To date the use of this power has only taken the nation to the brink of disaster. But any day circumstances and passions could combine to lay America low. There should be enough statesmanship left in the country to recognize the menace and produce a solution.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2—General Eisenhower's chances of November victory may fall or rise sharply and premonitory next weekend, when he unveils his agricultural program before 100,000 farmers and their families at the famous Minnesota conservation and plowing exhibition. It is almost impossible to exaggerate the political impact of this event in the area between the Mississippi River and the Rockies.

Governor Stevenson at first refused to attend because of a mixup over arrangements for his appearance, but grassroots advisers warned him that it might be fatal not to be on hand. Thus, it amounts to a face-to-face debate between the two for the farm vote before an audience that knows its onions, or, in this instance, its wheat, corn and livestock.

The Minnesota affair is not a mere local celebration. It is attended by farmers from nearby states, seriously intent on learning new methods of improving their land. By word of mouth, their impressions of the two candidates will eventually reach like-minded voters along the agricultural sector.

UNDERCURRENT — Neither Stevenson nor Eisenhower has yet given his views on many controversial phases of the farm issue, such as fixed or sliding parity levels, price supports and controls, government purchasing and export plans. Both men are question marks to the producers of the nation's food.

As of today, despite some dissent and dissatisfaction, it is reported that the farm vote leans toward Stevenson, figuring that he will continue the present program, which has brought high prices for most farm products. But there is sufficient undercurrent of suspicion and uneasiness, of resentment toward Truman trends at Washington, to make them ripe for a Republican harvest.

BATTLEGROUND — Most farmers, for instance, are opposed to the Brannan, two-price scheme, as Stevenson seems to be. Although farm income is high, Truman's inflationary policies force them to pay peak prices for supplies and equipment. Like millions of others, they want a "change," although it was their shift to the Democratic column which defeated Dewey.

Anyway, even more so than in 1948, the farm states furnish the decisive battleground in the 1952 campaign, as both contenders and their boards of strategy appreciate.

CRITICAL — The Minnesota debate in the remote hamlets of Dodge Center and Kasson will be far more critical for Ike than for

George K. Sokolsky's

These Days

Gerard Swope, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Institute of Pacific Relations, has addressed a letter to his members in which he states:

"I have read the (McCarran) Report myself, and I consider it to be extremely biased and unfair. By innuendo and by omission or distortion of evidence it conveys a thoroughly misleading and prejudiced account of the I.P.R. Some of you may feel that there have been instances of inappropriate conduct or poor judgment on the part of I.P.R. officers or employees in the past and these actions may well be open to legitimate criticism after a fair examination of the attendant circumstances."

I have not only read the report of the McCarran Committee's investigation into the Institute of Pacific Relations, but every word of the 14 volumes of testimony and all the documentary evidence attached to them.

I should have imagined that Mr. Swope would have read all the evidence because the report leans over backwards in avoiding prejudice, whereas the evidence, in detail, provides damaging proof of the complicity of officers and employees of the Institute in the Communist conspiracy.

It is the utmost irresponsibility to speak of instances of "inappropriate conduct or poor judgment." Men are responsible for their conduct; institutions are responsible for the men they employ. This cannot be ducked on the assumption that it is possible for the best of us, as for the worst, to make mistakes. We usually have to pay for our mistakes.

The McCarran Committee Report had this to say on the Institute of Pacific Relations:

"The Institute of Pacific Relations has not maintained the character of an objective, scholarly, and research organization."

"The IPR has been considered by the American Communist Party and by Soviet officials as an instrument of Communist policy, propaganda and military intelligence."

"The IPR disseminated and sought to popularize false information including information originating from Soviet and Communist sources."

"A small core of officials and staff members carried the main burden of IPR activities and directed its administration and policies."

"Members of the small core of officials and staff members who controlled IPR were either Communist or pro-Communist."

"There is no evidence that the large majority of its members supported the IPR for any reason except to advance the professed research and scholarly purposes of the organization."

"Most members of the IPR, and most members of its Board of Trustees, were inactive and obviously without any influence over the policies of the organization and the conduct of its affairs."

"IPR activities were made possible largely through the financial support of American industrialists, corporations, and foundations, the majority of whom were not familiar with the inner workings of the organization."

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT
THE NIGHT passed and nothing happened. Leonis spoke of it to Blaise next morning.

"I think perhaps you have guessed wrong. Vasquez was always a coward, a skulker. And perhaps your man is not guilty, after all. We wait one more day. Then we act."

"We'll see," Blaise said shortly. Just at sundown a score of riders came in from the east. Blaise stepped out of the hotel porch, stared a moment and then jumped to the street. Thatcher rode at the head of his men and Blaise recognized Rennie's trim figure instantly. They came up to the hotel, Rennie smiling, leaning down and extending her hand to Blaise.

"We couldn't stand it up in the hills. We had to come to see what is happening."

"I'm sure glad to see you," Blaise said, then flushed and looked around at Thatcher. "See you both," he added.

Thatcher smiled and dismounted. A few minutes later in a room upstairs, Blaise recounted what had happened in town, the bargain he had struck with Leonis. Rennie listened, her lips parted. She looked at her father and something passed between them. The old man lit a cigar.

"Then you know who killed Chavez? You have the proof?" Blaise signed and sat down on the edge of the bed. "No, not yet, give me a chance."

Rennie looked at her father. "We'll wait a little longer. If Blaise is right, things will come to a head. It's a time to be patient."

Then Blaise left them. Night had come again when he found Leonis in the midst of his riders at the saloon. Blaise spent a few moments at the man's table, then walked to the crowded bar, had a drink with some Montanas men.

"He had just lowered the glass when every man in the room stiffened, listening. The shout sounded closer this time, out on the street. A man burst through the batwings. 'Fire! A big one! Two barns west of town!'"

The men poured out the saloon, Blaise among them. A fitful red glow lit the street and Blaise saw flames licking high from two dark buildings. Men raced by, some with buckets. The wind was such that the fire endangered the rest of the town.

town. Leonis saw it, too. Blaise was jostled as the men hurried by. He held onto a porch support, studying the fire. Then he raced toward the store and the barn behind it.

Gunfire broke out, staccato and wicked. Blaise lengthened his stride, jerking his Colt from the holster. He raced the length of the store, the gunfire like thunder, and he could see the spitting flame-tongues from the outer darkness. The guards returned the fire. Blaise's gun added to the roar.

Dark shapes charged out of the darkness, guns blazing. Blaise fired again and again, and had to drop as bullets cut his way. Vasquez had struck, hard and swift. The guards broke and scattered. The bandits reached the barn, shot off the lock. The doors swung open. Blaise fired until his Colt emptied, then hastily ejected shells and crammed new ones into the chambers. The doors swung wider. A man dropped, a second grabbed his middle and sank to the earth.

Boots pounded close behind Blaise. He had a fleeting glimpse of Raikes and other Montanas riders. There were shouts down the street that grew louder as Scorpion hurried to join the battle.

Blaise jumped to his feet and joined Montanas. A new burst of fire came from the right as more men converged on the renegades. They milled before the barn and then, realizing they were cut off, they melted inside. The doors closed, and instantly gun flame lanced from the structure as they repelled the charge.

Blaise's shout called the Montanas men back to the store.

"Raikes, can you keep that door covered?" he asked.

"A rat couldn't get out," Raikes swore, "without getting shot."

"Where's Thatcher?"

"Somewhere. He sent us up here. Just in time."

"I'll find him and Leonis," Blaise said, "to figure out the next move." "Vasquez holds aces," Raikes said with a motion toward the barn. "We can't get him without losing a lot of men."

"He can't get out, either," Blaise said grimly.

He ran to the street. The thoroughfare was deserted.

A man came rushing up, halted a few feet away, peering into the darkness.

"Blaise?"

He sobbed. "I was hoping to get my bike back."

"Yes, Hal. Where's Leonis?" "Holding one side of the barn with the Scorpion boys. They let the townsmen handle the fire."

Thatcher? "Hotel, the last I saw him, but bawling for a gun and belt to get in the fracas."

"Vasquez struck like I thought he would," Blaise said. "We've got him trapped, now we have to tie him up."

"A job," Hal said.

"But we'll get him," Blaise snapped. "Let's find Thatcher and Leonis."

He stopped at the hotel. Rennie met him on the steps. She grasped his arms.

"I was afraid for you," she said. "So afraid, Blaise, so terribly afraid." She drew back and looked searchingly at him, her voice filled with wonder. "What have you done to me? What has happened?"

He smiled and shook his head. "I wondered about it, too, darling. But that's no good. It's enough we're here, us two... you and me."

"Yes, it's enough," she answered. Her eyes searched him again. "You're not hurt?"

"Not a scratch. I won't be. Where's Thatcher?"

"He found a gun and left—out there somewhere."

"I'll find him." He held her close a moment. "Be careful. Get inside. There might be stray bullets."

"You?" she asked.

"I've got to be out there. Maybe this will clear me. But I can't be hurt now... I know it."

He turned and jumped down the steps and as he turned the corner, he heard the rattle of a wagon in the street and he thought fleetingly it was a fine time for anyone to pass through Calabasas.

He found Leonis and Thatcher with the Scorpion men. The barn loomed an uncertain shape in the darkness, lit now and then with orange-red tongues of flame.

"We could rush the place," Leonis said heavily.

"He's not worth the men we'd lose," Blaise objected.

Hal came up and stood to one side as the three men discussed the problem. He elbowed into the circle.

"We can get him. Give me four men."

"How?" Leonis demanded. Hal chuckled. "Come along and see. It's an old Indian trick."

town. Leonis saw it, too. Blaise was jostled as the men hurried by. He held onto a porch support, studying the fire. Then he raced toward the store and the barn behind it.

Gundre broke out, staccato and wicked. Blaise lengthened his stride, jerking his Colt from the holster. He raced the length of the store, the gunfire like thunder, and he could see the spitting flames, tongues from the outer darkness. The guards returned the fire. Blaise's gun added to the roar.

Dark shapes charged out of the darkness, guns blazing. Blaise fired again and again, and had to drop as bullets cut his way. Vasquez had struck, hard and swift. The guards broke and scattered. The bandits reached the barn, shot off the lock. The doors swung open. Blaise fired until his Colt emptied, then hastily ejected shells and crammed new ones into the chambers. The doors swung wider. A man dropped, a second grabbed his middle and sank to the earth.

Boots pounded close behind Blaise. He had a fleeting glimpse of Raikes and other Montanas riders. There were shouts down the street that grew louder as Scorpion hurried to join the battle.

Blaise jumped to his feet and joined Montanas. A new burst of fire came from the right as more men converged on the renegades. They milled before the barn and then, realizing they were cut off, they melted inside. The doors closed, and instantly gun flame lanced from the structure as they repelled the charge.

Blaise's shout called the Montanas men back to the store.

"Raikes, can you keep that door covered?" he asked. "A rat couldn't get out," Raikes swore, "without getting shot."

"Where's Thatcher?" "Somewhere. He sent us up here. Just in time."

"I'll find him and Leonis," Blaise said, "to figure out the next move." "Vasquez holds aces," Raikes said with a motion toward the barn. "We can't get him without losing a lot of men."

"He can't get out, either," Blaise said grimly. He ran to the street. The thoroughfare was deserted.

A man came rushing up, halted a few feet away, peering into the darkness. "Blaise?"

"Yes, Hal. Where's Leonis?" "Holding one side of the barn with the Scorpion boys. They let the townsmen handle the fire."

Thatcher?" "Hotel, the last I saw him, but bawling for a gun and belt to get in the fracas."

"Vasquez struck like I thought he would," Blaise said. "We've got him trapped, now we have to tie him up."

"A job," Hal said. "But we'll get him," Blaise snapped. "Let's find Thatcher and Leonis."

He stopped at the hotel. Rennie met him on the steps. She grasped his arms. "I was afraid for you," she said. "So afraid, Blaise, so terribly afraid." She drew back and looked searchingly at him, her voice filled with wonder. "What have you done to me? What has happened?"

He smiled and shook his head. "I wondered about it, too, darling. But that's no good. It's enough we're here, us two... you and me."

"Yes, it's enough," she answered. Her eyes searched him again. "You're not hurt?" "Not a scratch. I won't be. Where's Thatcher?"

"He found a gun and left—out there somewhere."

"I'll find him," he held her close a moment. "Be careful. Get inside. There might be stray bullets."

"You?" she asked. "I've got to be out there. Maybe this will clear me. But I can't be hurt now... I know it."

He turned and jumped down the steps and as he turned the corner, he heard the rattle of a wagon in the street and he thought fleetingly it was a fine time for anyone to pass through Calabassas.

He found Leonis and Thatcher with the Scorpion men. The barn loomed an uncertain shape in the darkness, lit now and then with orange-red tongues of flame.

"We could rush the place," Leonis said heavily.

"He's not worth the men we'd lose," Blaise objected.

Hal came up and stood to one side as the three men discussed the problem. He elbowed into the circle. "We can get him. Give me four men."

"How?" Leonis demanded. Hal chuckled. "Come along and see. It's an old Indian trick."

Dr. B. J. Palmer of Des Moines conducts an annual plowing match similar to the Minnesota affair. Approximately 100,000 farmers, their wives and children show up, and it is one of the big events of the year.

Dr. Palmer invited Truman and Dewey to be present. The President took the trouble to get there, made a short, "homey" talk and sold himself to the crowd. Dewey was too busy to acknowledge the invitation.

Subsequently, when Dr. Palmer, an anti-Truman Republican, visited the White House, the President attributed his winning Iowa, Illinois and Ohio to his presence at the Palmer plowing match.

Truman carried these three states by only 68,000 votes. Had Dewey won them, the election would have been thrown into the House of Representatives.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

the news

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2—General Eisenhower's chances of November victory may fall or rise sharply and premonitory next weekend, when he unveils his agricultural program before 100,000 farmers and their families at the famous Minnesota conservation and plowing exhibition. It is almost impossible to exaggerate the political impact of this event in the area between the Mississippi River and the Rockies.

Governor Stevenson at first refused to attend because of a mixup over arrangements for his appearance, but grassroots advisers warned him that it might be fatal not to be on hand. Thus, it amounts to a face-to-face debate between the two for the farm vote before an audience that knows its onions, or, in this instance, its wheat, corn and livestock.

The Minnesota affair is not a mere local celebration. It is attended by farmers from nearby states, seriously intent on learning new methods of improving their land. By word of mouth, their impressions of the two candidates will eventually reach like-minded voters along the agricultural sector.

UNDERCURRENT — Neither Stevenson nor Eisenhower has yet given his views on many controversial phases of the farm issue, such as fixed or sliding parity levels, price supports and controls, government purchasing and export plans. Both men are question marks to the producers of the nation's food.

As of today, despite some dissent and dissatisfaction, it is reported that the farm vote leans toward Stevenson, figuring that he will continue the present program, which has brought high prices for most farm products. But there is sufficient undercurrent of suspicion and uneasiness, of resentment toward Truman trends at Washington, to make them ripe for a Republican harvest.

BATTLEGROUND — Most farmers, for instance, are opposed to the Brannan, two-price scheme, as Stevenson seems to be. Although farm income is high, Truman's inflationary policies force them to pay peak prices for supplies and equipment. Like millions of others, they want a "change," although it was their shift to the Democratic column which defeated Dewey.

Anyway, even more so than in 1948, the farm states furnish the decisive battleground in the 1952 campaign, as both contenders and their boards of strategy appreciate.

CRITICAL — The Minnesota debate in the remote hamlets of Dodge Center and Kasson will be far more critical for Ike than for Adlai. Now, if ever, Eisenhower must hit hard and tear up his platitudinous, sweetest-and-light homilies.

Stevenson can win the presidency without a single electoral vote from these farm states, if he holds the southern and border states, and noses ahead in the northeastern and Pacific Coast regions. Mathematically, the Middle West is not essential to him for a majority in the electoral college, where even a one-vote margin is enough to elect.

COMPUTATION — The eleven farm states in the middle basin have a total of 140 electoral votes. Included in this area for the purpose of this computation are Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, North and South Dakota.

Even if Ike corrals these 140 electoral ballots, he will still be far from the White House. He would have to carry such doubtful commonwealths as New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and California. With Republican Maine and Vermont, this would give him 273, or seven more than he needs for election.

D-DAY — Ike's theoreticians at Washington are penciling prospects that he may pick up the fifty-six electoral votes of discontented Democrats in the states of Texas, Louisiana, Florida and Virginia. He can use them, but they can hardly be counted as solid, political assets in any sensible assessment.

By

Eisenhower's political future may hinge upon the Republican Middle West. Besides winning the farmers, he must also combat the supposed apathy of Taft sympathizers and the Chicago Tribune's demand for formation of a new American Party. So, for him, next Saturday is D-Day.

IMPORTANCE — An incident in the 1948 campaign emphasized the importance of these farm rallies.

Dr. B. J. Palmer of Des Moines conducts an annual plowing match similar to the Minnesota affair. Approximately 100,000 farmers, their wives and children show up, and it is one of the big events of the year.

Dr. Palmer invited Truman and Dewey to be present. The President took the trouble to get there, made a short, "homey" talk and sold himself to the crowd. Dewey was too busy to acknowledge the invitation.

Subsequently, when Dr. Palmer, an anti-Truman Republican, visited the White House, the President attributed his winning Iowa, Illinois and Ohio to his presence at the Palmer plowing match.

Truman carried these three states by only 68,000 votes. Had Dewey won them, the election would have been thrown into the House of Representatives.

Ohio's Largest Harness Plant Sets Opening

Grandview Schedules 44-Night Meet For $350,000 In Purses

CLEVELAND, Sept. 2.—The blue book of harness racing will open its pages to spill out famed horses and drivers as Grandview opens its doors Sept. 11 for a 44-night meet.

Almost every record-breaking horse in America's fastest growing sport is scheduled to appear at the new Cleveland racing plant during the course of the meet, brought here by the $350,000 total of purses offered for the meet.

Leading the procession of great names in the royal family of harness racing will be Good Time, the top money winner of all time among the trotters and pacers. The little pacer's owners hope that before the season is over he will have earned $300,000, a record they believe will not be touched for many a year. The former money-winning record holder was Proximity with lifetime earnings of $252,985.96.

Good Time is also the co-holder of the world's pacing record for the mile. He was clocked at 1:57 4-5 at Lexington in 1951.

THE FAMOUS horse will appear on the third night of the meet in a free-for-all pace for a purse of $5,000. Nominated to race with him are a score of record-breaking pacers, including Dudley H a n o v e r, which have been giving Good Time competition all season.

The Grandview meet may be the last in which Good Time appears as a competitor. Owners have an-

Milwaukee Cops Another Pennant

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 2.—Milwaukee breezed to its second straight American Association pennant Monday. The Brewers swept a doubleheader from second-place Kansas City to take a 12-game lead on the Blues with only eight more to play before the regular season ends Sunday.

It was the Brewers' eighth championship in the history of the league, one short of the record held by St. Paul.

nounced he will probably be retired at season's end.

Also in the lead at Grandview will be Pronto Don, the top-money winning trotter. The horse has a lifetime earning record of more than $200,000.

Pronto Don and a star field including Ford Hanover and Florican are nominated to appear at Grandview in a free-for-all trot for a $5,000 purse Sept. 20.

The Grandview entry lists are starred with the horses in all fields which have been making records all season.

Record horses nominated to appear include four of five of the leading trotters in the Hambletonian, the richest race for 3-year-old trotters and more than half the field of eligibles for the Little Brown Jug, the richest race for 3-year-old pacers.

Famous horses nominated include Solicitor, Tar Heel, Duke of Lullwater, Dr. Stanton, Gander, Direct Rhythm, Prince Jay, Sampson Hanover, Lively Lady, Ford Hanover and a score of others.

IN ADDITION the sport's biggest stables have indicated they will be present with a large field of horses to enter in the nine dashes a day, for purses from $400 to $1,000 a dash, scheduled for the meet.

The new track was built to be a racing showplace of Ohio. The plant is the third largest in capacity of the harness tracks in the country. Only Roosevelt Raceway in New York and Santa Anita in California are larger. Its capacity is 15,000. It has a grandstand with a capacity of 6,000 and a clubhouse with luxury dining accommodations.

Its total of purses puts it into the class of the five top tracks of the country. Scheduled in the meet are races for four $10,000 purses; seven $5,000 purses; twenty-six $2,500 purses; and nearly 350 races for purses of $600, $700, $800 or $1,000 each.

Cincy's Reds Mixed With TV Mystery

It may be that Cincinnati baseball fans should call the police next time their television sets begin to talk about "stealing" a base or a "shot" down the foul line.

At any rate many of them probably felt like calling someone somewhere Saturday afternoon when the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs became tangled on television for a moment with a real mystery thriller.

It surely must have been a mystery because it drifted in and out of the ball game without explanation from the station.

The Redlegs, who perhaps couldn't be blamed if they stopped to underhand tactics to get a hit these days, were trying to do some scoring in the early innings when the announcer's voice went off and strange voices came in.

"IT'S A counterfeiter!" a gangster baritone shouted. "The whole thing's a frameup! When they come in, you get the girl and I'll grab the gun!"

Meanwhile, on the screen, the story wasn't keeping step at all with the script. In fact, "Big Klu" had merely looped a foul into the stands and Rogers Hornsby looked peaceful enough mopping his brow in the coaching box.

Things then resumed their normal way and the baseball announcer didn't even tell the listeners who grabbed which girl.

It may have been one of those unusual video reception happenings, or—on the other hand—may be TV fans in Cincinnati just aren't up to date on baseball lingo.

Longer Hunting Season Possible

COLUMBUS, Sept. 2.—Ohio waterfowl hunters may have a 10-day longer season this year.

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service set the 1952 waterfowl season in the Mississippi Flyway, of which Ohio is a part, from Oct. 13 to Dec. 6, inclusive. The season is for ducks, geese, brant and coot. It does not apply to the Pymatuning Reservoir in Ashtabula County which will be open from Oct. 20 to Dec. 13. The Ohio Wildlife Division has not announced the Ohio waterfowl season.

Sokolosky's These Days

"The effective leadership of the IPR often sought to deceive IPR contributors and supporters as to the true character and activities of the organization."

"Neither the IPR nor any substantial body of those associated with it as executive officers, trustees or major financial contributors, has ever made any serious and objective investigation of the charges that the IPR was infiltrated by Communists and was used for pro-Communist and pro-Soviet purposes."

"The names of eminent individuals were by design used as a respectable and impressive screen for the activities of the IPR inner core, and as a defense when such activities came under scrutiny."

Every statement herewith quoted can be fully substantiated by the evidence in the 14 volumes of the McCarran Committee hearings. Mr. Swope does not refer to a single letter in those hearings in this letter. He does not call attention to a single error. He does not specify a single injustice by the committee. He does not defend anyone accused by the committee.

His answer to the enormous work done by the McCarran Committee is this:

"I am glad to say that many I.P.R. members and large corporations (among them the Standard Vacuum Oil Company, the International General Electric Company, the National City Bank, the Bankers Trust Company, and the National Cash Register Company) have in recent weeks shown their support by renewing their generous contributions."

The McCarran Committee might now inquire why an organization that has "disseminated and sought to popularize false information including information originating from Soviet and Communist sources," should be tax-exempt or why contributions to it should be deductible as a charity.

That might also be considered by the Cox Committee.

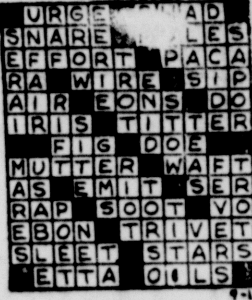

Picnic Planned

Cincinnati Booster Club will have its annual picnic at 6 p. m. Wednesday in Gold Cliff Park for Booster members and their friends. Soft drinks will be furnished by the Club.

Ohio's Largest Harness Plant Sets Opening

Grandview Schedules 44-Night Meet For $350,000 In Purses

CLEVELAND, Sept. 2—The blue book of harness racing will open its pages to spill out famed horses and drivers as Grandview opens its doors Sept. 11 for a 44-night meet.

Almost every record-breaking horse in America's fastest growing sport is scheduled to appear at the new Cleveland racing plant during the course of the meet, brought here by the $350,000 total of purses offered for the meet.

Leading the procession of great names in the royal family of harness racing will be Good Time, the top money winner of all time among the trotters and pacers. The little pacer's owners hope that he will have earned $300,000, a record they believe will not be touched for many a year. The former money-winning record holder was Proximity with lifetime earnings of $252,985.96.

Good Time is also the co-holder of the world's pacing record for the mile. He was clocked at 1:57 4-5 at Lexington in 1951.

THE FAMOUS horse will appear on the third night of the meet in a free-for-all pace for a purse of $5,000. Nominated to race with him are a score of record-breaking pacers, including Dudley Hanover, which have been giving Good Time competition all season.

The Grandview meet may be the last in which Good Time appears as a competitor. Owners have an-

Milwaukee Cops Another Pennant

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 2—Milwaukee breezed to its second straight American Association pennant Monday. The Brewers swept a doubleheader from second-place Kansas City to take a 12-game lead on the Blues with only eight more to play before the regular season ends Sunday.

It was the Brewers' eighth championship in the history of the league, one short of the record held by St. Paul.

Also in the lead at Grandview will be Pronto Don, the top-money winning trotter. The horse has a lifetime earning record of more than $200,000.

Record horses nominated to appear include four of five of the leading trotters in the Hambletonian, the richest race for 3-year-old trotters and more than half the field of eligibles for the Little Brown Jug, the richest race for 3-year-old pacers.

Famous horses nominated include Solicitor, Tar Heel, Duke of Lullwater, Dr. Stanton, Gander, Direct Rhythm, Prince Jay, Sampson Hanover, Lively Lady, Ford Hanover and a score of others.

IN ADDITION the sport's biggest stables have indicated they will be present with a large field of horses to enter in the nine dashes a day, for purses from $400 to $1,000 a dash, scheduled for the meet.

The new track was built to be a racing showplace of Ohio. The plant is the third largest in capacity of the harness tracks in the country. Only Roosevelt Raceway in New York and Santa Anita in California are larger. Its capacity is 15,000. It has a grandstand with a capacity of 6,000 and a clubhouse with luxury dining accommodations.

Its total of purses puts it into the class of the five top tracks of the country. Scheduled in the meet are races for four $10,000 purses; seven $5,000 purses; twenty-six $2,500 purses; and nearly 350 races for purses of $600, $700, $800 or $1,000 each.

Cincy's Reds Mixed With TV Mystery

It may be that Circleville baseball fans should call the police next time their television sets begin to talk about "stealing" a base or a "shot" down the foul line.

At any rate many of them probably felt like calling somebody somewhere Saturday afternoon when the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs became tangled on television for a moment with a real mystery thriller.

It surely must have been a mystery because it drifted in and out of the ball game without explanation from the station.

The Redlegs, who perhaps couldn't be blamed if they stooped to underhanded tactics to get a hit these days, were trying to do some scoring in the early innings when the announcer's voice went off and strange voices came in.

"It's a counterfeit!" a gangster baritone shouted. "The whole thing's a frameup! When they come in, you get the girl and I'll grab the gun!"

Meanwhile, on the screen, the story wasn't keeping step at all with the script. In fact, "Big Klu" had merely looped a foul into the stands and Rogers Hornsby looked peaceful enough mopping his brow in the coaching box.

Things then resumed their normal way and the baseball announcer didn't even tell the listeners who grabbed which girl.

Sprays Now Can Control Almost All Pests On The Farm

Success Depends On Usage

Agent Larry Best Outlines Rules For Top Results

Today as never before there is an insecticide or fungicide or weed killer for most insects, diseases and weeds which are harmful to fruits, vegetables, farm crops, flowers and that are annoying around the household.

Larry Best, county extension agent, said most folks today are taking advantage of these new chemicals in combating insect and disease and weed problems, but we are having varying degrees of success.

This has caused criticism of companies making the product, the product itself and, even in some cases, recommendations for using the material.

Certain rules must be followed for success in any undertaking combating weeds, insects and disease. Most products on the market today, for this use, are tried and proved before they are ever released for public use.

IN GENERAL, if the following guides are followed, Best said, a reasonable degree of success will be realized.

Make sure you use the material for its intended use. For example, DDT has never been recommended as a control for horse flies.

Make sure you know the insect, disease, or type of weed you wish to control. Rotenone is the insecticide for Mexican bean beetle, but leaf hoppers will play leap frog in it.

Read and follow instructions on the label of the package containing the material. Most products carry excellent instructions. Follow them!!

Many times applications need to be repeated or continued. Thoroughness of application is a must.

Most spray and dust materials are poisons. Treat them as such. Undue amounts of the materials inhaled or allowed to remain on the skin can be very harmful.

Oil solutions should be removed from exposed parts of the body with soap and water.

Oil solutions are inflammable. Beware of open flames around the house.

DO NOT ALLOW insecticides to come in contact with food. The insects are bad enough. Keep all chemicals away from children. Label the containers poison and store them out of reach. Do not expose rat baits where pets or children can get to them. Paint, wallpaper, and fabrics are sometimes ruined by sprays. Test for staining before applying whole-sale.

Modern chemistry is one of man's greatest assets. By improper use of chemical materials many have had disappointments and disaster. Kerosene was never intended to replace kinking in starting a fire, yet many people burn down their homes and kill their families by failing to stop and think.

Another School Chieftain Quits

WILMINGTON, Sept. 2 — (AP)—James M. McDonald has resigned as superintendent of Wilmington schools.

The board of education said McDonald's resignation came as a "complete surprise." The resignation was accepted "without prejudice," but McDonald, superintendent for the last 13 months, was asked to stay on until the schools are under way.

McDonald said in his letter of resignation "there are too many folk conflicting with the majority of the present board." He had replaced H. W. Hodson, who also left the system while under fire.

Blanchester Lad's Death Is Probed

CINCINNATI, Sept. 2 — (AP)—The coroner's office is awaiting autopsy findings which may show whether an eight-year-old Blanchester lad died of food poisoning.

The boy, William Hopkins, became ill with three other members of his family after eating his Wednesday night meal. A Blanchester physician, who was not summoned until early Sunday, ordered the

50-Bushel Wheat Possible With Fertilization

Fifty bushel wheat yields per acre are possible on most midwestern farms if better fertilization and cultural methods are used.

Agronomists point out such yields are regularly being grown on individual farms or via college-sponsored experiments.

The soils men report that these yields can be obtained on most farms when the soil's fertility level has been built up so it can provide an abundant, easily-available supply of balanced nutrients for the wheat plants.

The statement cites a 5-point program for boosting wheat yields, recently recommended by Dr. Arnold Klemme, University of Missouri extension specialist:

1—Have a soil test made to determine what nutrients are needed. Then add the right amount of fertilizer indicated by the tests.

2—"Accent the positive" by building the soil's reserves of mineral nutrients with phosphate and potash fertilizers. Reinforce this mineral fertilization with heavy applications of nitrogen each year.

Add a complete starter fertilizer at wheat seeding time.

3—Plant a hardy, stiff-strawed wheat variety that will produce large heads with lots of kernels.

4—Make a good, easily-worked seed bed.

5—Plant enough seed to produce plenty of heads and give high yields.

Sprays Now Can Control Almost All Pests On The Farm

Success Depends On Usage

Agent Larry Best Outlines Rules For Top Results

Today as never before there is an insecticide or fungicide or weed killer for most insects, diseases and weeds which are harmful to fruits, vegetables, farm crops, flowers and that are annoying around the household.

Larry Best, county extension agent, said most folks today are taking advantage of these new chemicals in combating insect and disease and weed problems, but we are having varying degrees of success.

This has caused criticism of companies making the product, the product itself and, even in some cases, recommendations for using the material.

Certain rules must be followed for success in any undertaking combating weeds, insects and disease. Most products on the market today, for this use, are tried and proved before they are ever released for public use.

IN GENERAL, if the following guides are followed, Best said, a reasonable degree of success will be realized.

Make sure you use the material for its intended use. For example, DDT has never been recommended as a control for horse flies.

Make sure you know the insect, disease, or type of weed you wish to control. Rottenone is the insecticide for Mexican bean beetle, but leaf hoppers will play leap frog in it.

Read and follow instructions on the label of the package containing the material. Most products carry excellent instructions. Follow them!!

Many times applications need to be repeated or continued. Thoroughness of application is a must.

Most spray and dust materials are poisons. Treat them as such. Undue amounts of the materials inhaled or allowed to remain on the skin can be very harmful.

Oil solutions should be removed from exposed parts of the body with soap and water.

Oil solutions are inflammable. Beware of open flames around the house.

DO NOT ALLOW insecticides to come in contact with food. The insects are bad enough.

Keep all chemicals away from children. Label the containers poison and store them out of reach. Do not expose rat baits where pets or children can get to them. Paint, wallpaper, and fabrics are sometimes ruined by sprays. Test for staining before applying whole-sale.

Modern chemistry is one of man's greatest assets. By improper use of chemical materials many have had disappointments and disaster. Kerosene was never intended to replace kerosene in starting a fire, yet many people burn down their homes and kill their families by failing to stop and think.

Another School Chieftain Quits

WILMINGTON, Sept. 2 — (P) James M. McDonald has resigned as superintendent of Wilmington schools.

The board of education said McDonald's resignation came as a "complete surprise." The resignation was accepted "without prejudice," but McDonald, superintendent for the last 13 months, was asked to stay on until the schools are underway.

McDonald said in his letter of resignation "there are too many folk conflicting with the majority of the present board." He had replaced H. W. Hodson, who also left the system while under fire.

Annual County Bus Inspection Begins Thursday

Pickaway County's 70 school buses will be put through their annual inspection beginning Thursday.

The inspection, to be conducted by Circleville's State Highway Patrolman Bob Greene, is held to make sure all of the buses are in good condition and have all their safety equipment in working order.

First buses to be inspected will be those of Circleville and Pickaway Townships at 9 a. m. Thursday in Pickaway County Fairgrounds.

Complete inspection schedule for this year's bus program, showing the school district, the number of buses and the place and time of inspection, is:

CIRCLEVILLE Township, (1) 9 a. m. Thursday in Fairgrounds; Pickaway Township, (6) 9 a. m. Thursday in Fairgrounds; Washington Township, (5) 1:30 p. m. Thursday at Washington school; Scioto Township, (8) 9 a. m. Friday at Scioto school; Darby Township, (4) 1 p. m. Friday and Muhlenberg Township, (2) 1 p. m. Friday, both at Darby school. Wayne Township, (3), and Deercreek Township, (4) both at 9 a. m. Sept. 8 at Williamsport school; Perry Township, (3) and New Holland (3) both at 1 p. m. Sept. 8 at Atlanta school.

Madison Township (3) and Harrison Township (3), both at 9 a. m. Sept. 9 at Ashville school; Walnut Township (8), 1 p. m. Sept. 9 at Walnut school.

Jackson Township (6), 9 a. m. Sept. 10 at Jackson school; Monroe Township (5), 1 p. m. Sept. 10 at Monroe school.

Saltercreek Township (6), 9 a. m. Sept. 11 at Saltercreek school.

County Superintendent George McDowell said the regular driver of each bus is to be present for the inspection.
